We have built our farm around growing nutritious, healthy, anti oxidant rich foods

Jesse grew up in the Philippines and knows first-hand how important fresh food is to one's health.

Becky's family has a history of cancer and heart issues. After 10 years of researching food science and nutrition, she is convinced that organic, locally-grown food is the very best for her family and community.

She has experienced improved health herself and she wants to see others healed in similar ways. We have built our farm around growing nutritious, healthy, anti oxidant rich foods.

We are passionate about the food we raise and our customers know they can trust us.
